

This website does not totally meet what I expected in A1; however, that may be due to a lack of effort on my part. Overall this website is not the worst and not the best. I do believe that the use I set out for when making it, inform others about myself, was accomplished but it obviously could've been done better. I think next time I try to code a website using HTML and CSS I am going to take much more time in planning, collaborating and even researching to see what works with some styles and what doesn't. Overall, the 3 assignments were fun challenges, and the course was fun.
